REBUILDING FROM THE GROUND UP: EMPLOYER AND ALUMNI PERSPECTIVES FOR COURSE REDESIGN

2/01/23

Dr. Rachel Dolechek, assistant professor of business communication, recently published an article in Business and Professional Communication Quarterly. The article explains that while employers and alumni at a midwestern university value NACE core competencies and employability attributes similarly, there were certain elements that were overlooked in the previous curriculum. Identifying the relevant top competencies was a leading factor in the course redesign process.

MODERN APPROACHES TO ADDRESSING THE MASS INCARCERATION OF AMERICA'S MENTALLY ILL POPULATION

02/09/23

Cameron Bice, recent FHSU graduate, and Dr. April Terry, associate professor of criminal justice, published an article in the February edition of Academic Leadership Journal in Student Research. Their paper draws attention to the use of jails and prisons as modern-day psychiatric hospitals. They advocate for proactive and reactive reforms that seek to reduce the mass incarceration of individuals with mental illness as well as improve correctional facility conditions for this population.

THINKING CRITICALLY ABOUT SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY

2/01/23

Dr. Janett Naylor-Tincknell, professor of psychology, and Dr. Whitney Whitaker, associate professor and department chair of psychology, recently published three chapters in the Social Psychology textbook. The chapters focus on culture and group dynamics, applied social psychology and competition, conflict, and cooperation.
